INTRODUCTION

Monterey, Massachusetts is a small town nestled in the Berkshire Hills of Western Massachusetts. The town was chartered in 1737 by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony as Township #1 and later was named Tyringham. In 1847, Tyringham was divided in two along the ridge that separated to the two valley villages and the southern half of the town became incorporated as the Town of Monterey. In subsequent years, Monterey annexed additional lands from the Town of New Marlborough and Sandisfield, creating what is the present boundary of the town.

Many of the 63 original proprietors and settlers of Township #1 came in the 1740's and 1750's primarily from Watertown, MA, and included the families of Captain John Brewer, Isaac Brewer, Isaac Gearfield, John Jackson, Giles Jackson, Thomas Slaten, John Slaten, John Brown, Isaac Pratt, Joshua Warren, Thomas Orton, Samuel Watkins, Thomas Reuwee, and Ephraim Williams among others. In October 1750, the town engaged their first minister, the Reverend Adonijah Bidwell of Hartford, Connecticut. He ministered in the town for the next 34 years until his death in 1784. He built his homestead presumably in the 1750's on the "first minister's lot" in what was then the center of Tyringham near the Royal Hemlock Road and Boston-Albany Post Road. His homestead stands today as the Bidwell House Museum at the end of the present day Art School Road.

Many of these original proprietors and their descendants can be found buried in the cemeteries in Monterey and Tyringham. The first graveyard to be opened, originally called the "Old Center Ground" or "Old North Ground", is currently known as Henwood Cemetery or Woods Cemetery, named after Henry Woods who owned the adjoining property. Several of the original proprietors and their families can be found buried here including Captain John Brewer and Rev. Adonijah Bidwell.

Several years later, a second town cemetery was established about one mile north of the Old North Ground. This area was referred to as "Center Ground" as it was near the town center at that time, or later "North Ground" as it was located in the northern part of Monterey. The cemetery is presently known as Old Center Cemetery. Burials here began in the later 1700s with the oldest gravestone surviving from 1799. The cemetery was extensively used during the 1800s with many descendants of the original proprietors buried here. It was nearly full by 1900 and has been little used since then.

A third cemetery located on Mt. Hunger Road was established in the late 1700s for those residents in the eastern part of the town, and hence was referred to as the "East Ground". It is now known as Mt. Hunger Cemetery and was in use throughout the 1800s. Many members of the Dowd and Thompson families can be found here.

The fourth and largest cemetery in Monterey was established at the western end of the town, and known during the 1800s as the West Ground. Around 1900 it was renamed the Corashire Cemetery. The graveyard opened between 1815 and 1820 with the earliest stone surviving from 1820. The cemetery has been in continual use since that time and is currently the only active cemetery in the town.

The fifth cemetery in the town is the Chestnut Hill Cemetery located in that portion of the town that was annexed by Sandisfield. Gravestones in this cemetery date from the late 1700s through the 1800's. Here can be found many families that lived in this section of Sandisfield.

Inscriptions of the gravestones in the Monterey cemeteries have been catalogued several times. The Daughters of the American Revolution ("DAR") compiled a cemetery listing in 1942, a copy of which is housed at the Mason Library in Great Barrington, MA. Several stones were located by the DAR which now no longer exist, have fallen and been buried, or have become so worn by weather and pollution, as to be no longer legible. The author compiled a gravestone listing in 1984.

In 2006, the author began the process of recataloging the gravestones in the cemeteries in Monterey, giving care to record the inscription of each stone exactly, including epitaphs at the bottom of the stones. Families were grouped together by plot, gravestone, and monument to more easily show family groupings and relationships.

In addition, the author has surveyed the following resources to obtain burial records for those persons who are presumed to be buried in the various cemeteries in the town, but who do not have a marker, and to obtain vital records for those buried in these graveyards.

1. Gravestones that the DAR listed but which were not located in 1984.

2. Obituary notices from the Berkshire Courier ("BC"), a weekly newspaper published in Great Barrington from 1834 to the 1980s. Some of these notices would state the place of burial.

3. Birth, Marriage and Death Records for the towns of Monterey ("MonVR"), Tyringham ("TyrVR") and Great Barrington ("GBVR") were included. These vital records can be found at the respective town halls and on line at Ancestry.com and Family Search.org ("MA Death Index"). For modern death records, the Social Security Index on Ancestry.com was consulted.

4. Burial records for the Corashire Cemetery were obtained from a handwritten notebook kept by the cemetery commissioners from 1820 to 1920. Burial records for the period of 1920 to the 1980s were obtained from the Cemetery Commission ("Burial Record").

WOODS or HENWOOD CEMETERY

Henwood or Woods Cemetery, formerly referred to in the burial records of the 1800s as the "Old Center Ground" and "Old North Cemetery", is located on Beartown Road in Monterey, Massachusetts. It is supposedly named after Henry Woods who lived at the property adjoining the cemetery. Forty-eight stones were found here with several stones lying flat on the ground, partially or wholly buried, or illegible.

OLD CENTER CEMETERY

The Old Center Cemetery, formerly known as the "Center Ground" and the "North Ground", is located on Beartown Mountain Road near the old center of the Town of Monterey. The oldest stone to survive dates from 1799. More than 350 gravestones and monuments were located. A few stones are no longer legible, but in general the gravestones in this cemetery are much better preserved than stones of the same age in other cemeteries in the area.

According to Edward R. Knurow of Lanesboro, MA who did extensive research of the colonial lot land owners in Berkshire County, the first burial in Township No. 1 (now Monterey and Tyringham) took place with the burial of Abiel Slaton, daughter of Thomas and Abiel Herrington Slaton on June 26, 1740. In 1740 Thomas Slaton owned lot #43 in Township No. 1 (now part of Monterey), and when he sold this lot to Ephraim Thomas by deed dated November 27, 1749, the deed description stated that Mr. Slaton sold Lot No. 43 "excepting 1 acre of land lying in s'd lott, on north end of s'd lott, where my child was buryed, s'd acre is to lye in a square form." Mr. Knurow believes that Thomas Slaton's one acre part of the site of the Old Center Cemetery.

CORASHIRE CEMETERY

Corashire Cemetery, formerly known as the West Cemetery, is located on Blue Hill Road in Monterey. It is the largest cemetery in the town and primarily the only active cemetery. The cemetery was opened in between 1815 and 1820, with the earliest known recorded burial dating from 1820. People are grouped together in each plot or on each stone, in order to more easily establish family groupings. Otherwise the compilation is alphabetical.
